

MUSIC

ARTS

FOOD &amp; DRINK

INTERVIEWS

COMMUNITY

FUTURE TENANT PREMIERES PGH ARTIST EXHIBIT, "NEW ORDER: COLLAGE NOW"

Published On May 18, 2016 | By Missy Schrott | The Arts

Buchholz

This summer, local Pittsburgh explore a diverse range of topics in a common medium – the collage. The upcoming exhibition, “New Order: Collage Now,” Beginning Friday, June 3, Future Tenant will host the month-long exhibit with eight local artists, many of whom are influenced and inspired by Pittsburgh.

Each artist takes on his own project, but they are all uniting under the medium of the collage. They shatter conventions, layer text and images, and combine jarring ideas to tell new stories.

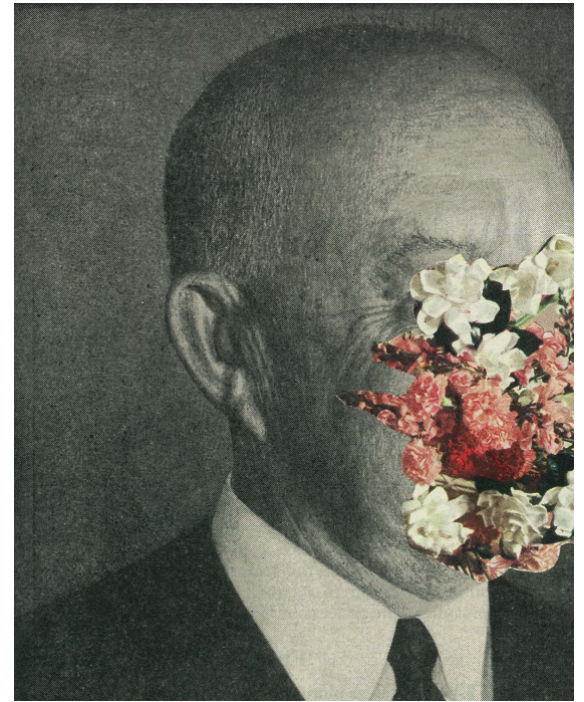

From Matthew Buchholz’s humorous infusion of science fiction into a historical scene, to Kim F. Finnerlin’s map of the United States, New Order will bring together a fresh, exciting, and unique collection of art.

collection of art.

These accomplished artists will each bring a new flavor to the exhibit through an array of differing approaches, from charcoal on paper to a mishmash of wax, iron, and recycled debris.

Stephen Knezovich

Fifth generation Pittsburgher Stephen Knezovich uses language and history to tell a story through collage. In addition to visual art, Knezovich additionally works in writing, publishing, and filmmaking. His art is inspired

“Bluster” – Knezovich

“New Horizon no15” – Knezovich

by his interest in English and c based culture, stating that ima words—“if you arrange and rea vigorously enough, eventually narratives begin to appear.”

Stephanie Armbruster

Cleveland native and Carnegie alumna Stephanie Armbruster Pittsburgh in 2001. The studio background in both graphic de art. Armbruster’s piece in New Now is inspired by music cultu

She plays with fiction, reality, myth, and memory as she depicts elements of moder culture.

Knezovich and Armbruster’s work will be displayed among the six other artists feati Tenant’s cutting edge art space, located downtown at 819 Penn Av

A free opening reception will be held at Future Tenant on June 3 at 6PM along with complimentary beer and cider – as if you needed another reason to go check it out.

Armbruster

RELATED POST

Pittsburgh Halloween Party List 2016

Roundabout Brewery Hosts 3rd Annual Smoktoberfest

Nine Stories
Bookstore Starts New Chapter in Lawrenceville

201

← Previous post

LEAVE A REPLY

Your email address will not be published. Required fields are marked *